

Dear David:

I am writing in response to the opening for 'Jr. Web Developer' position, which I believe may report to you.

I'm energetic, eager, willing to learn, and not above doing anything. If that's not sufficient, I have listed some of the qualities a 'Jr. Web Developer' needs.

I had the experience of working with two companies, one with Cognizant and other with a startup company. Without an eye for details and good taste for 'look and feel' websites, I don't get the job and I don't get paid. The nature of my Master's degree in Computer Science at Cal State Fullerton has prepared me for this position. It involved a great deal of independent research, requiring initiative and wide range of skills. One of my courses, Front-end Web Engineering, made me more skillful with the front-end technologies. I'm familiar with HTML, CSS, JavaScript, jQuery, Bootstrap and Git & GitHub. I started learning Wordpress and I don't think it takes much time to grasp it. I had the experience of leading a group of 29 people during my training at Cognizant. I can offer you all my experience to fill in the gap and provide my service to make your organization look and feel better by designing great websites. All the skills and experience should make me an ideal candidate for this opening.

I have attached my résumé for your review and would welcome the chance to speak with you. Please don't hesitate to call me at 7147264904. Thanks in advance for your time and consideration, and I sincerely look forward to make your websites look and feel great.

Regards,

Smaran M
